In January of 2020, I made the decision to step away from furthering my career in healthcare and made a leap into the field of education. Starting over at WKU was hard for me, but Jeremy Logsdon made this process extremely fun and welcomed me with open arms. He was the very first professor I had when I entered WKU's college of education and behavioral services. When COVID hit, I was still working at the hospital, despite changing my major, face-to-face with a scary pandemic that we had no answers about at the time. At WKU, we left for spring break and didn't come back to campus until Fall of 2021. Professor Logsdon made the virtual classes work for us and still kept us engaged and excited with everything he had to teach us. He was available every semester (and moment) I needed him, even past the time I had left his class. Last semester, I entered the CEPT program, received Erin as my professor and began my fieldwork within Warren Co Schools. I was terrified to enter a new school system after only ever being in Simpson County. She became our momma bear and again, welcomed us (me especially) with open arms. Even after I left her class, she was available to me at any and every given moment, whether it had to do with education or not. She was supportive, loving, and uplifting in every moment. Next semester, I'll be ending my educational journey with the same person I started with (Professor Logsdon) and I couldn't be more excited about it! I am so lucky and thankful to have such wonderful professors throughout this process! You guys make waking up early exciting and I constantly feel ready to face whatever the day has to throw at me now! Thank you for all you do for us, especially for me! ❤️

You, Erin Elizabeth and 52 others

Kerston, I cannot tell you how much this means to me and how incredibly proud I am of you. You have traveled a harder road during your undergraduate than most people do, and I am so proud of you for being this close to the finish line! I was so excited when I got the email telling me I was going to be your supervisor (as well as two other students I first had in EDU 250!), and I am honored that I get to bookend your educational journey during this degree.

Jeremy Logsdon this means SO much to me!! You have no idea how uplifting and inspiring this comment is and how uplifting and inspiring you have been to me all this way!! I am always nervous to have a teacher observing me while I teach the lessons I have created, but having a familiar face being the one to observe me and having someone who I trust to give me constructive feedback from in the classroom with me lifts such a weight off my shoulders. I look forward to what my last semester as a WKU undergrad student will bring with you on my team!!
