New announcement from Jeremy Logsdon

Quick Note of Clarification

Hello all,

I hope this email finds you well. Dr. Paganelli and I have gotten a few emails, seeking some clarification on a few issues, so we thought we would send out an email addressing some of the more common issues, as well as giving you some context for our individual Zoom meetings later this week.

Firstly, the textbook - any version of the text you can find will be appropriate. It does not have to be the version from 2018, which has recently jumped up in price. I found a version from 2020 as an eBook tonight on Amazon for $26.99, and there are used copies for around $32. This book will serve as a resource as you work through this program, and it is fine if you do not have it right away.

Secondly, the Enneagram self-reflection does not have a submission link in Blackboard as we originally indicated. This is a holdover from a previous version of the class, and we are changing this to be discussed at our Zoom meeting instead. That means you should still do it, and you are very welcome to email it to you, but we'll discuss it in person.

And lastly, here are some questions for you to keep in mind for our Zoom consultation with you later this week.

1. What did the Enneagram test and your self-reflection tell you?

2. What does meaningful work mean to you?
3. How do these things interact with your job?
4. What special topic are you planning to explore in your foundational microcredentials?
 1. classroom management?
 2. assessment literacy?
 3. instructional practice?
 4. a topic of your own?
5. What will be the focus for your three course modules? (your answer to #4 will guide this one)

We look forward to working with you, and please do not hesitate to reach out to us if you have any questions!

Thanks,

Dr. Logsdon
