Hello Dr. Logsdon,

Thank you so much for your email and the scholarship. I am excited to tutor her. I would appreciate an introduction email now; it would be great to connect with her before the spring semester starts so that we can arrange the times we will meet according to our schedules.

Sincerely,
Nesma Soliman

Nesma,

I wanted to email and introduce myself. My name is Dr. Logsdon, and I am the director of the WKU Center for Literacy. With funds from the Dollar General Literacy Foundation, I am able to offer you a $500 scholarship for this spring for some TOEFL tutoring. Traditionally, we've asked our tutors to commit about 30 hours over the course of the semester for the scholarship, but that is more of a maximum threshold than anything else.

Right now, I have one nursing student who is interested in improving her English skills to pass the TOEFL exam. I have actually had this young lady in class in the past. She is an Afghani student, one of the nicest human beings I have ever met, and such a hard worker. She actually has a decently strong English fluency already, but I can see her having some difficulties with some of nuances of the English language.

I am happy to connect you two at the start of the spring semester. Let me know if you'd like me to go ahead and make the introduction now so you can plan times to meet!

Thanks,

Dr. Logsdon
