New announcement from Jeremy Logsdon

Mid Week #3 Update

Hello all,

As of right now (2:33 p.m. CDT), everything that has been submitted has been graded. I remain impressed with the work you are producing! I hope you are not finding this class quite as frightening at this point of the semester as you may have felt when you first heard you had to take a research course.

Just as a reminder, we have about 9 days of class left! Phase I is due tonight by midnight; your Assessment and Research prompt - the last one! - is due Sunday, as is Phase II. I will give you feedback on Phase II as soon as I receive it and I realistically can, so that you can take that feedback and use it for Phase III, which is due on Wednesday the 30th. Also due on Wednesday the 30th is your animation module.

You'll get feedback on that, you can make any final changes as needed, and you'll upload your final Phase III project sheet, with a link to the animation, to Anthology AND to the LITE Org site. After Wednesday the 30th, I will also email you your dispositions, which will need to be uploaded Anthology as well. This will complete the course!

As a reminder, I'll be in the Zoom room tonight starting at 8 p.m. CDT at this link: <https://wku.zoom.us/j/93127188724> As with last week, if no one is there by 8:15, I'll probably roll out, but you may always email me with questions or the request for an individual Zoom at any time.

We're almost at the end!

Dr. Logsdon
